Retirement fund with the vested benefits account

When investing in funds as part of a vested benefits policy, you decide whether you wish to receive advice or would prefer to submit the order to the Rendida vested benefits association independently for every transaction by means of a self-declaration. Advice is always provided in a personal consultation at the branch.

Your investment needs

You make your own investment decisions independently by means of a self-declaration – but you can benefit from individual, personal advice at the branch if you'd prefer.

What the service includes

- Upon request, you can benefit from an individual consultation with a customer advisor. Based on your calculated risk capacity, risk appetite and investment horizon, during the personal investment consultation you receive an investment proposal tailored to your own investment strategy. The investment proposal is only intended as a means of helping you with your investment decision and covers all assets in your retirement savings account 3a.
- The strategy is implemented via one of the four PF Pension retirement funds.
- You can order fund transactions (by means of a self-declaration) at any time without advice. We forward them to the vested benefits association without carrying out any suitability checks.
- Neither PostFinance nor the association carry out selective or constant monitoring of the investment strategies. The investment proposal contains a well-diversified product and is always in line with the investment strategy recommended.
- You can seek advice again at any time.
- The completion of a self-declaration is mandatory when issuing orders independently. This is not equivalent to a PostFinance consultation. The self-declaration is only produced for the Rendida vested benefits association. Its contents are not checked, stored or otherwise used by PostFinance. PostFinance can only assess whether a transaction meets your requirements as part of a personal consultation.
