Regardless of whether companies send physical or electronic invoices, Paper Bill offers them a solution from a single source.
- For companies that only send paper invoices, introducing Paper Bill will not only lead to an immediate increase in efficiency. It will also lay the foundation for them to digitize their invoicing processes in future.

Here's how it works

You submit your invoice data to us in the familiar yellowbill 2.0 format. If the invoices have the “physical mailing” option, they will be sent to our printing partner. The printing partner will then print and pack the invoices before handing them over to Swiss Post for mailing.

Useful information

Do you already use eBill and/or electronic invoices? In order for your paper invoice data to be processed successfully, additional fields must also be supplied in the XML (as <AdditionalReference>) that describe the characteristics for physical mailing, e.g. window position, print type or franking. You can find out more in the Paper Bill documentation at postfinance.ch/paper-bill.

Here's how the process works in detail

- You send us your invoices as XML, including PDF file, by data upload.
- We prepare the data.
- During the onboarding process, you receive a one-off final printing proof from us, and you give us the go-ahead.
- We send the print order to a partner printing company, and we manage the entire process, including printing the invoices, mailing them and managing returns.
- You receive structured status confirmations that make it easier to manage your transaction data and master data.
